Html5 Developer

I had been working on the website interface (including all its subsites) using Ruby on Rails development tools. Also, I developed complex UI elements, implemented UX patterns, implemented pixel-perfect layout for displaying a large amount of different data, developed versions of sites for people with special needs. Worked on small tasks on the backend. Wrote templates for emails, and was engaged in the automation of their sending. Engaged in unit testing.

Testimonial

"CodersRank makes it very easy for me to identify and contact skilled developers. It saves time on assessing the right match by providing an evaluation of the technical background of developers which often says 100 times more than a CV. I've made several hires by working with them."

"Codersrank offers personal approach with customized filtering of results and saved searches. My personal favorite was when I asked to have a couple of new features added that would help me in my search, and it didn't take long to see the new feature live! One of the greatest features is ranking candidates based on skills. The inflow of new talent is never-ending thanks to the revolutionary algorithm the tool is based on."
